EXCLUSIVELY • FOR YOU

Happy Anniversary...

To you! Our sponsors, supporters, patrons, friends, colleagues and all who have in some way contributed to the success of the Macau Business Charity Golf Tournament & Gala Dinner. When we started pitching the concept of an aggregated corporate event five years ago, "CSR" was very much a foreign concept, save for a few noble exceptions. It has been a long, arduous, uphill battle but, five years on, we feel we have achieved some measure of what we set out to: to establish a charitable golf outing as a platform for local businesses to give something back to the community.

Still, there are many companies who continue to resist the tide. We can only hope they will follow the leading example of the socially-conscious companies and individuals featured in these pages, and will come to understand that doing business is not just about bottom lines. There is a growing faction of less fortunate who are not benefiting from the galloping development Macau is experiencing, and they deserve our support.

Back at the greens, this fifth anniversary edition of the MBCGT&GD is an astounding success with increased support and a record number of teams wielding their clubs for charity. For two days you'll revel in the two different challenges both local golf courses offer and, to top it off, you're invited to the Charity Gala Dinner, an evening of culinary delight, fine wines, spirits and five star entertainment. We hope you enjoy the fifth Annual Macau Business Charity Golf Tournament; it's your party too!

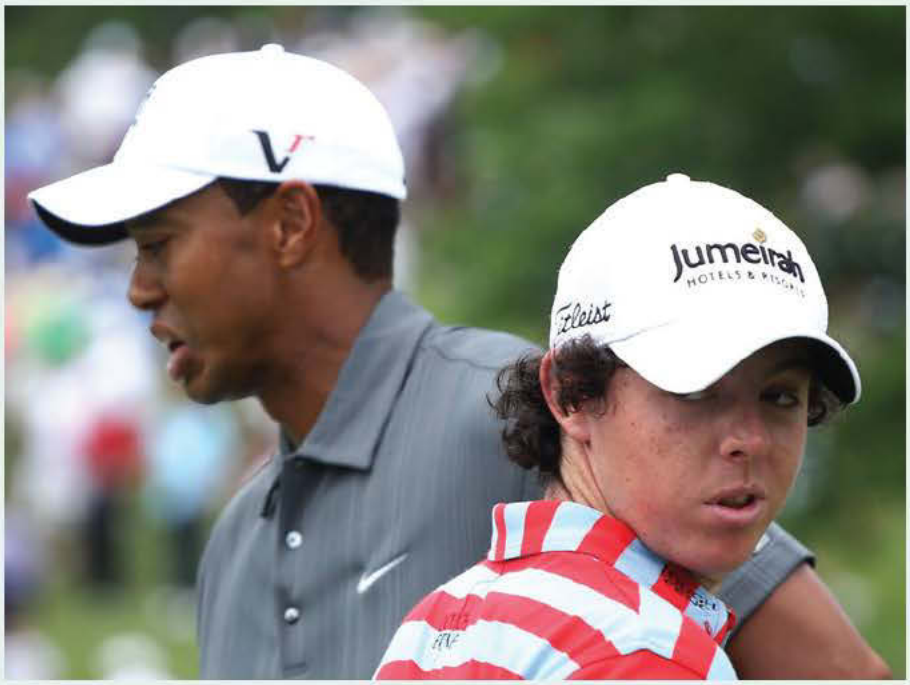
Rory McIlroy: Is he becoming the next Tiger?



With his win at the US-Open this year, 22-year-old Rory McIlroy not only received US$1.44 million, but according to many, has put himself in a similar position as Tiger Woods was early in his career.

In becoming the youngest player to win a major since Woods succeeded at the Masters in 1997, there are many opportunities for him to compete for more prize money, and offers regarding big sponsorship deals and appearance fees. His win at the US-Open is not the only reason the Northern-Irish player is the new shining star of golf. When he became Pro at the age of 18, many experts and Pro golfers predicted he could be the next No. 1, and could dominate the sport in the coming years. "His maturity and the way he plays golf are amazing", said his compatriot and immediate predecessor as US Open champion, Graeme McDowell.

Since Tiger woods left a big gap in the market, when he spectacularly fell from grace in 2009, the media and experts have been looking for a new poster boy for golf. And McIlroy has the ability to fill this gap like no one else. He can fascinate men because he is a great golfer, and women because of his charisma and youthful good looks.

Ultimately, it is his performance on the course that matters most to the media and potential sponsors, and McIlroy is just starting off right now and likely not yet at the very top of his game. He could become a great ambassador for the sport of golf. Will he achieve what Tiger was doing around 2000 and win 14 major championships; can he be that good? He certainly at least has the potential.

Woods still earned the most in 2011

Without winning a single major tournament since November 2009

According to the Forbes 'World's 50 Highest-Paid Athletes' list Tiger Woods is still leading easily, far outearning others on the list like basketball superstars Kobe Bryant and Lebron James, as well as tennis pro Roger Federer and his golf fellow Phil Mickelson.

Even though Woods has not won any tournaments since November 2009, when he was involved in a car accident near his home in Orlando, Florida, and the infidelity scandal that followed, he still earned about US$75 million in sponsorship deals and appearance fees in 2011. Nike and Electronic Arts are still his valuable business sponsors and are responsible for more than half of his entire earnings. Second and third ranked basketball stars Kobe Bryant from the Los Angeles Lakers and LeBron James from the Miami Heat are at a noticeable distance on the earnings scales. Bryant made about US$53 million last year and James, who had the most sold jersey in the last season and the No. 1 basketball shoe on the market, made about US$48 million. Swiss tennis professional Roger Federer is ranked fourth on the list with about US$47 million, just ahead of the second golf player on the list Phil Mickelson, who earned about US$46.5 million last year. Even though Mickelson was diagnosed with psoriatic arthritis, he maintains that it will have no long-term effect on his golf career. The last two golf professionals on the Top 50 list are Jim Furyk (ranked 34) with US$23 million and Ernie Els (ranked 43) with about US$19.6 million

Rank	Name	Earnings
1	Tiger Woods	US$ 75 million
2	Kobe Bryant	US$ 53 million
3	LeBron James	US$ 48 million
4	Roger Federer	US$ 47 million
5	Phil Mickelson	US$ 46 million
6	David Beckham	US$ 40 million
7	Cristiano Ronaldo	US$ 38 million
8	Alex Rodriguez	US$ 35 million

Chan hits jackpot in Macau Open

Chan Yih-shin from Taiwan recovered from an opening double bogey to win his second Asian Tour title by three shots in the US$750,000 Macau Open, back after a year's interruption

Chan's tee shot went out-of-bounds for a double bogey on the first hole but he rallied with a massive chip-in birdie from 40 feet on 12 before closing with two-under-par 69 in blustery conditions at the Macau Golf and Country Club.

He ended his campaign with a winning total of 14-under-par 270 and took home a winner's cheque of US$118,875 and a two-year exemption on the Asian Tour.

David Gleeson of Australia and Thaworn Wiratchant of Thailand, both former Macau Open champions, shot matching 66s to finish in second and third place respectively for their first top-10 finish on the Asian Tour this year.

Chan's victory ended a poor run of form where he has no top-10 finishes since last October. However, he needed to overcome a nervy start where the lead changed hands between him and Mo Joong-kyung of Korea on several occasions.

He was trailing Mo by one shot after the turn but produced a magical run starting from his chip in birdie on 12 before adding crucial birdies on 13, 14 and 16 to cruise home with a wire-to-wire victory as Mo faded.

Mo signed off in tied fourth place after a round of 72 with Zaw Moe of Myanmar and Asian Tour honorary member Jeev Milkha Singh of India, who closed on identical 69s.

"I didn't know what to think after my double bogey but I kept telling myself to calm down. The pressure was there in the first nine and I felt better only after my chip in birdie," said Chan, winner of the 2009 King's Cup in Thailand.

"I didn't putt very well in the beginning of the year and that was why I didn't get a good result. This whole week was the best that I've putted and I'm glad to be able to come out victorious," said Chan.

Gleeson eagled the last hole to complete a superb week where he ended a five consecutive run of missed cuts on the Asian Tour.

The Australian credited a new set of golf clubs for his return to form, where he has enjoyed very little success in the last two years.

"I was just not comfortable with all my clubs in the last two years. I thought I was getting weaker but it was actually because I had the wrong shafts on my clubs," said the two-time Asian Tour winner.

"That's a technical issue and once I felt comfortable with my swing then my game came back to me again," he added.

Thaworn, the 2009 Macau Open champion, turned in a superb 30 highlighted by an eagle three on the second hole after his seven wood from 240 yards landed nine feet from the pin.

However, he failed to maintain his title charge as his putter went cold.

"It would have been my week again if my putter worked in the back nine. Obviously I'm disappointed but it is my best result this year and I hope to continue my form in the coming weeks," said Thaworn, a 12-time Asian Tour champion.

The Macau Open presented by Cityneon was delayed for approximately one hour 45 minutes due to lightning threats.

The Macau Open has been a regular fixture on the Asian Tour calendar and has previously attracted some of the world's best players. The tournament has been won by many world stars, including Lee Westwood of England (1999) and Colin Montgomerie of Scotland (2003).

Melco Crown Entertainment - Care for Macau

With deep roots in Macau, Melco Crown Entertainment Limited (NASDAQ: MPEL) believes in sustainable development of the community.

Melco Crown Entertainment has an extensive Corporate Social Responsibility strategy built around its charity pillars: Youth, Education, Culture, Women, Environment, and Responsible Gaming.

One of Melco Crown Entertainment's many initiatives is the first-ever free breast check-up program in Macau. Seeing that regular breast check ups is not common in Asia and Macau, Melco Crown Entertainment joined hands with Organization for Oncology and Translational Research (OOTR) to provide free breast examination and ultra sounds to Melco Crown Entertainment's female employees and local Macau women.

Melco Crown Entertainment also established the first-ever scholarship in Macau that not only covers its employees but their children as well. Net proceeds from the first anniversary show of The House of Dancing Water, with international piano maestro Yundi Li as special guest performer, will go to the Melco Crown Entertainment-Yundi Li Scholarship. This is a joint effort with the Cultural Affairs Bureau to inculcate cultural interest and talent to the deserving local Macau music students. Another program to promote youth music talents is the sponsoring of the Macau Youth Original Music

Competition with University of Macao students for two consecutive years.

The Company also leads the industry in its environmental protection and responsible gaming efforts. Melco Crown Entertainment set up the Responsible Gaming Steering Committee and Environment Steering Committee across the Company's different locations and functional units. Led by Co-Chairman and CEO, Mr. Lawrence Ho, these programs are supported from the top.

As a result, Melco Crown Entertainment's flagship resort, City of Dreams, is the first resort in Macau to receive Indoor Environmental Quality (IEQ) Certification issued by SGS, a world-wide international certification company. The IEQ Certification speaks for the level of comfort, hygienic and sanitary conditions and air quality in all its common areas, including gaming areas, restaurants, hotels and shopping areas.

Melco Crown Entertainment also took the initiative to work with Macao Polytechnic Institute (MPI) to set up the "MPI-Melco Gaming and Entertainment Information Technology Research and Development Center" as well as donating for three consecutive years to the University of Macau Development Foundation in support of their RG research and development efforts.

Volunteerism is an active component of Melco Crown Entertainment's corporate strategy of giving back to the community. The MCE Volunteer Team organizes various volunteer activities, both outreach and in-house, on a weekly basis. These include regularly visits to community centers for local underprivileged groups, and invitations to the underprivileged to experience the Company's flagship resort, City of Dreams' various entertainment offerings, including The House of Dancing Water, Kid's City and Dragon's Treasure. The Company anticipates hosting over 110 CSR activities throughout 2011.

In 2010, Melco Crown Entertainment received a corporate volunteer award from the Association of Volunteer Social Service of Macau.

THE STAR

About "The Star"

Sydney's biggest hospitality and entertainment redevelopment, is edging closer to completion, with confirmation that Star City is being given a new name to complete the transformation. Revealed today, The Star, Sydney's new one-of-a-kind leisure and entertainment destination, will be relaunched in late September with a series of openings and a festival period to introduce Sydneysiders to the exciting new offering.

The AUD$ 860 million redevelopment includes the re-orientation of the building to embrace Sydney Harbour and the city skyline. The new frontage will feature a dramatic floor to roof glass facade with rotating clear glass windows, wrapping around the streetscape. With a 3,000 square metre extension, the destination will include 20 restaurants, bars and cafes and a new retail collection set on an open promenade lining Sydney's waterfront.

The new name is born out of an aspiration for the casino to rise up and be a 'star' attraction of Sydney. At the same time, the decision was made to relinquish the 'City' part of its name, preferring to respect the city in which it resides instead. The Star will open its doors to the public with a series of events and live entertainment through to the end of the year.

Sid Vaikunta, Managing Director, The Star, said; "We are incredibly excited to be able to unveil the new name and identity which completes the picture for our new hotel, casino, dining and nightlife destination. Sydney deserves an entertainment hub that it can be proud of. We hope that The Star will play a huge part in Sydney's ever-evolving landscape, continuing to make this incredible city a must-see destination."

"We designed The Star to represent everything that Sydney stands for: good food, beautiful views and memorable experiences. It's been a long progression to get to where we are today, but in a few months we will be revealing the new harbour-side entrance and our new offerings," he added.

The redevelopment of The Star commenced in November 2008 and has had over 1200 full time construction workers employed for two and a half years working on the project. The construction has been a complex process, with one of the major milestones including the installation of a 48 metre long and 8 metre wide awning, which provides a porte cochere entrance along Pirrama Road. The structure weighing 8,150kg was designed according to traditional "Feng Shui" standards and is made of premium grade polished stainless steel.

Some other astounding facts from the redevelopment include the following: 44,700 kg of glass were used to create the glass flags on the new Pirrama Road entrance; 1850 tonnes of steel have been fitted during construction; 32,502 cubic meters of concrete used; Over 2,060 truck-loads of demolition debris have been taken from site; Around 431, 500 meters of electrical cables installed.

As with the design aesthetic, sustainability has also been top of mind in the redevelopment. To reduce The Star's carbon footprint, rainwater collection facilities have been incorporated and will be used for landscape irrigation and other water conservation initiatives.

Launching as part of the redevelopment is a new five-star lifestyle hotel, which will offer 171 rooms and suites, a luxurious day spa and an outdoor pool with a deck, cabanas and bar. Built in addition to the existing hotel and suites, it will bring the total rooms at The Star to 650 across three towers.

The Star will also deliver a dining experience unlike any other destination in Sydney. An internationally acclaimed line-up of chefs including David Chang, Teage Ezard, Chase Kojima and Stefano Manfredi along with Sydney institution Golden Century are set to open their doors in the coming months.

As well as luxury accommodation The Star will be home to a sophisticated new collection of retail stores, connecting the hotel, refurbished casino and other entertainment venues. The retail area will feature leading luxury brands.

In addition to the 2,000-seat Lyric Theatre, a 4,000-capacity events centre, with sweeping views over Sydney Harbour and the city skyline, is also in the planning stages for The Star. The 2,400 square metre column-free space will be fully equipped with state-of-the-art technology and production facilities, designed to host A-list performers in an intimate setting as well as domestic and international conferences, exhibitions and functions.

Caesars Golf Macau

Caesars Golf Macau is one of the best places in Asia to tackle an original links style course. Our par-71 course has been modeled to emulate the very best in traditional links-style golf courses.

Butch Harmon School of Golf
Caesars Golf Macau is home to the first and only School of Golf in Asia under the world's most highly regarded coach, Butch Harmon.

Butch Harmon
Butch Harmon has been involved in the golf arena for over 36 years. His father, Claude Harmon, a renowned teaching professional and 1948 Masters Champion, introduced him to the game. Following in his father's footsteps, Mr Harmon became an accomplished player on the PGA TOUR in the early 1970's, winning the B.C. Open in 1971.

Butch Harmon School Of Golf
Butch Harmon opened his first signature golf school in the late 1990's at the Rio Secco golf course in Las Vegas, USA. And the Butch Harmon School of Golf Macau was established in 2008. Mr Harmon visits Caesars Golf Macau every June and December, teaching signature clinics and hosting his annual eponymous tournament, the Butch Harmon Invitational. Mr Harmon is a leading analyst for British Sky Broadcasting, which covers the Masters, U.S. Open, PGA Championship and TOUR Championship. Helping to polish the talents of PGA Tour and LPGA Tour notables such as Greg Norman, Tiger Woods, Phil Mickelson, Ernie Els, Adam Scott and Natalie Gulbis over the years, Harmon has been voted Golf Digest's Teacher of the Year on multiple occasions, including in the most recent ranking in 2009. Combined, Mr Harmon's students have claimed over 100 PGA, European PGA and Champions Tour victories while under his tutelage.

Caesars Clubhouse
The brand new Clubhouse at Caesars Golf Macau was designed for VIPs and features a host of luxurious amenities, including a golf lifestyle boutique, spa services as well as VIP suites with dining, entertainment facilities and private terraces.

The Dining Room at Caesars Golf Macau Casual golfer's fare by day or authentic Cantonese cuisine by night, the Dining Room at Caesars Golf Macau serves up the freshest, tastiest creations to satisfy any palate.

Peaceful golfing

Sentosa means "peace and tranquillity" in Malay. And that is what you will get as a golfer. This island resort in Singapore, alongside a two-kilometre long sheltered beach, includes two championship 18-hole golf courses.

Opened in 1972, the Tanjong course, originally designed by Frank Pennick, was remodelled by course designer Max Wexler and course architect Christ Pitman in 1993.

As for the Serapong course, it was designed by Ronald Fream and opened in 1982. Gene Bates and the Bates Golf Design Group revamped it in 2007.

The Serapong course has received numerous awards including the "Number 1 Championship Golf course in Asia" by Asian Golf Monthly in 2007 and "Best Golf Course in Singapore" by Golf Digest in 2009.

Currently home to the Singapore Open, the course is definitely the most spectacular in the Lion City. A large lagoon contributes to the stunning views, but the course itself poses some challenges for enthusiastic golfers – the tee shots are often tight and water hazards are not far away.

As for support facilities, there is a Chinese restaurant, an Italian restaurant, a lounge, a reading room and much more. Furthermore, you have caddies, putting greens and the David Leadbetter Golf Academy at your disposal.

Located amidst natural tropical woodlands, Sentosa is a golf paradise minutes away from Singapore's city centre turmoil.

WE MEET YOUR EVERY SOCIAL AND GOLFING NEED!

Like to reserve a tee-off time, have us cater you a gathering or even arrange for your transportation to and accommodation in Macau.

Macau Golf & Country Club

Nature herself created a magnificent setting for this truly unique golf course. With spectacular views over the picturesque Hac Sa Beach and the South China Sea, the course offers a wide variety of interesting and challenging playing conditions. With various holes ranging from flat to undulating and with strategically placed bunkers and lakes, the golf course is memorable for the unique challenge that golfers are confronted with at every hole. The multiple varieties of trees, shrubs and natural vegetation also add seasonal color to the verdant splendor of the golf course making a great experience for every golfer regardless of one's score.

Hole #1 Par 4 394 Yds.
This pleasant opening hole requires a straight drive to avoid well-placed fairway bunkers. The second shot to a well-bunkered large green plays further than it looks, so ensure you have enough club.

Hole #2 Par 5 498 Yds.
A left to right dog leg par 5 requiring a long straight drive to get to the dog-leg and avoid the bunkers. Big hitters may reach the green in two. A well placed second shot is needed to open up the green for a short iron third.

Hole #3 Par 4 332 Yds.
This very tight, rising par 4 needs an accurate tee shot to place the ball between the out of bounds and three bunkers. The elevated green makes club selection for the second shot very tricky.

Hole #4 Par 3 152 Yds.
This is a straightforward par 3 made awkward by swirling winds around the green. A definite birdie chance for any good iron player.

Hole #5 Par 4 474 Yds.
An elevated tee gives the player a view of all the trouble to be negotiated. This hole requires a good long drive to allow the opportunity to try for the green tucked in a hazard protected hollow. Hole 5 is the toughest par 4 on the course, a real card wrecker.

Hole #6 Par 3 140 Yds.
Out of bounds on the left and water behind on the right makes this relatively simple hole harder to play than it should be.

Hole #7 Par 4 317 Yds.
Out of bounds, ravines, a narrow fairway, and elevation changes make this short par 4 quite daunting. The sensible play is a long iron to the center of the fairway, which sets up a mid to short iron blind second shot to a well-bunkered elevated green.

Hole #8 Par 4 370 Yds.
A definite birdie chance if you can avoid the fairway bunkers from the picturesque elevated tee. A small, very undulating green places a premium on pinpoint accuracy for the short iron second shot.

Hole #9 Par 4 405 Yds.
A straight away down hill par 4. If you can thread your tee shot through the fairway bunkers you find yourself with a mid to short iron down hill shot to a heavily bunkered sloping green.

Tournament Tees
Par 71 6,557 Yds.

Hole #10 Par 4 396 Yds.
An intimidating tee shot that requires a fade to put the ball on the right side of the fairway. This sets up a mid-iron to a raised upturned saucer shaped green. Make par or better on this hole and you deserve a pat on the back.

Hole #11 Par 3 230 Yds.
This is a tough par 3. Pinpoint accuracy with a long iron or fairway wood is your only chance of hitting this punishing green.

Hole #12 Par 5 574 Yds.
This classic par 5 rises from tee to green and is a genuine three shooter. A booming drive is needed to carry the water, followed by an accurate fairway wood which will set up a mid iron third to a violently sloping two-tier green.

Hole #13 Par 5 536 Yds.
Trouble all the way down the right side makes accuracy rather than length the requirement for this hole. A good short iron third shot to the elevated green will set up a birdie chance if you can negotiate the swirling winds around the green.

Hole #14 Par 3 201 Yds.
Trouble down the right, bunkers on the left and a small sloping green make this the toughest par 3 on the course.

Hole #15 Par 4 339 Yds.
A long iron or fairway wood off the tee will set up a short iron over water to the sunken green. This pretty hole is a definite birdie chance.

Hole #16 Par 4 410 Yds.
Anything but a perfect drive will leave a second shot off an upward sloping lie to a long two-tier green with hazards behind and to the right. This seemingly simple hole can be a real card wrecker.

Hole #17 Par 3 225 Yds.
This spectacular par 3 has an elevated tee 140 feet above a big green surrounded by cliffs and shrub land to the right and the South China Sea to the left. Anything other than the perfect tee shot will result in disaster.

Hole #18 Par 5 564 Yds.
Big hitters may risk going for this green in two, but sea, lakes, deep greenside bunkers and out of bounds usually forces a lay up second shot. This leaves a mid to short iron third over water to a sloping elevated green with out of bounds just over the back.

Golfer's heaven

Every golf enthusiast living in this area of the world has heard of Mission Hills and the tales of this behemoth. Offering no less than a dozen championship courses, it is the world's largest golf complex, having overtaken the United States' Pinehurst compound of eight courses in 2004.

Spanning more than 20 square kilometres over the cities of Shenzhen and Dongguan, the US$1.5 billion (MOP12 billion) investment includes three clubhouses, 51 tennis courts, and 556 hotel rooms and suites, employing an 8,000 strong work force from 18 nations.

The female caddy core – all 3,000 of them - attends to 1,500 carts running on no less then 360 kilometres of track.

A weekday in Mission Hills sees an average of 2,000 rounds of golf, a figure that goes up to 3,000 on a weekend. It is a colossus, keeping up with China's wolfing appetite for the sport.

A golfer is spoiled for choice at Mission Hills: any of the 12 championship courses is a signature design from a playing legend, presenting a dignified challenge for every level of play. Just don't let the overall number of bunkers daunt your game for a second: a mere 1,200.

Depending of the course you are playing, management might suggest placing you in either the Shenzhen Club House – the original - or in Dongguan – the largest club house in the world, covering 6,000 square metres with 338 rooms and suites to choose from. There is also the Mid-Valley Club House.

Shenzhen features five courses, including the 1995 World Cup Course by Jack Nicklaus, the complex's first, which played a pivotal role in the development of the sport in the mainland; Vijay's (1997), incorporating the distinctive use of long sandy waste bunkers and sharp edged faces; Ozaki's (1998), with some of the most dramatic zen-like scenery you'll see outside of Japan; Els' (2001), honouring his reputation as the "big easy" with grand elevations; and Zhang's (2007), a new experience in China – an 18-hole par 3 course, featuring some of the most influential design concepts.

The Mid-Valley Club House services "only" two courses: Faldo's (1999), the first stadium course in the mainland featuring one of the most spectacular island greens on the 16th hole; and Pete Dye's (2007), providing a unique challenge with thousands of railroad ties and every kind of devilish bunker, plus undulating greens – not for the faint hearted!

At Dongguan, another five courses: Annika's (2003), one of the shortest courses – featuring six par 3, six par 4 and six par 5 holes – while demanding accuracy beyond its stunning mountain top vistas; Duval's (2003), designed around large expanses of turf and trees in a traditional presentation; Leadbetter's (2003), daring the player to use every club in their bag to navigate a friendly, sculptured course; Olazabal's (2003) a treacherous course challenging golfers both in length and shot making, as its the longest course in the complex – at 6.8 kilometres – and incorporating 180 bunkers; and Norman's (2004), arguably one of the most demanding courses in Asia, snaking between abundant deep bunkering surrounded by thick forest.

All three club houses are massive, each sporting its own spa and beauty amenities, restaurants and bars, plus arcade-sized pro shops complete with club customization from every recognizable brand, high end apparel and souvenirs.

We know what you're thinking, but don't worry: they will be packing your brand of golf ball.

The best thing about this piece of golfers' heaven is that it is a stone's throw away from Macau. A 50-minute jetfoil ride lands you at the Shenzhen Ferry Terminal and from then on its a 40-minute drive to the Shenzhen Club House, traffic allowing, and another 25 minutes or so to Dongguan's.

Mission Hills offers enticing packages, making it the perfect golf getaway, with group rates available up to eight rooms and 20 golfers.

Plus the complex hosts some of Asia's most competitive golfing events in the second part of the year: the Annika Invitational in August, the Mission Hills Golfathon Grand Final in October and the Mission Hills Golf Series Seasonal Final in December.

So there is no excuse not to indulge in, arguably, one of the seven marvels of golf!

End the slicing

A slice trajectory is where the ball starts on a path and then curves to the right (to the left for left handers). Its cause stems from the clubface being in an open position (rotated to the right for right handers) at impact.
Many players try to correct it by rotating or flipping the bottom hand over the top hand as they strike the ball. This may work but the results usually are inconsistent. For a better solution consider the following:

Strengthen the grip

This is a weak grip and promotes a slice. Only one knuckle is visible on the top hand while in the set up.

Strengthen the grip by rotating it to the right. Ideally, you should see about 2 - 3 knuckles on the top hand while in the set up.

Staggered feet drill:

Set the body square to the target and then stagger the feet by moving the front foot towards the target line about 15 cm and the back foot away from it the same distance. This makes it easier to attack from the inside as it promotes a proper pivot of the right hip. Namely, it must shift forward towards the target throughout of the downswing. After using this drill, try to create the same sensation with a square stance.

Aim the feet line to the right of the target.

Create a down swing path that attacks the ball from the inside.

Normal slice position using a square stance and incorrect pivot of the right hip.

When these 2 steps are taken the player should feel the club approach the ball from the inside and the clubface naturally square up to the target. The feeling is like hitting a fore hand top-spin shot in tennis out to the right side of the court.

Grip size

Grip is too small. The fingers press into the palm too much.

Grip is the right size. The fingers press lightly into the palm.

Grip is too big. The fingers do not touch the palm.

Finding the proper grip size relates directly to the size, strength, & function of the hands. The size of the hands and especially the length of the fingers is the primary factor. Ideally, the fingers of the top hand lightly brush up against the palm when the grip is taken.

The strength of the hands also affects grip size. Players with arthritis, for example, usually prefer a larger grip to help compensate for the loss of strength and range of motion in the fingers.
The function of the hands refers to the type of wrist action or release. Some players prefer to slow or reduce the wrist/hand action through impact. These players prefer a larger grip. Other players that struggle with slicing or a 'blocked' release may consider using a smaller grip size.

Playing from the Rough

During the summer months the extra rain fall combined with high heat and humidity can make the rough a nightmare. It can grow very long and thick making it difficult to advance the ball properly. The problem is that too much grass gets trapped between the clubface and the ball. To improve contact, the player should:

1. Move the ball back in the stance
2. Pick the club up steeply in the back swing
3. Maintain a steeper attack into the ball through impact

Ball Position in the Fairway
Neutral in Stance

Ball Position in the Rough
Further Back in Stance

The player should note that the ball will fly lower and have less back spin. For greenside rough, consider using the highest lofted club in your bag and open the club face if the pin is close by. The harder you can swing at the ball the better your chances are of good contact. For some players it feels very similar to playing a bunker shot. For fairway rough, try using a hybrid or fairway wood with significant loft. Play to land the ball short and roll up onto the green as it usually will not stop where it lands. Good luck!

Every hole counts

The Annual Macau Business Charity Golf Tournament and Gala Dinner is set to chip in for good causes

When charity and corporate social responsibility meet golf, every hole counts. That is exactly what will happen this month, when the fifth Annual Macau Business Charity Golf Tournament hits the greens, followed by the customary Gala Dinner.

The 36-hole competition is divided into two days, one at Caesars Golf Macau on Sunday, September 25 and the other at the Macau Golf and Country Club on Friday, September 30. While the slots for teams have long been oversubscribed, patrons still have a chance to show they care by participating in the Macau Business Gala Dinner, to take place at the Westin Resort on September 30.

In its short history, the charity golf outing has distributed MOP800,000 (US$100,000) in prize money, and generated more than MOP1.3 million through auctions and donations. The prize money and other money raised has then been forwarded to various charities in the region.

Local charities that have benefited from the event include the Tung Sin Tong Charitable Society, the International Ladies Club of Macau, Special Olympics Macau, the Macau Child Development Association, the Cradle of Hope Association and Caritas Macau.

Charities and social projects outside Macau that have benefited include Hong Kong's Yan Chai Hospital, the Hong Kong Society for the Protection of Children, the Cambodian Children's Surgical Centre and the international children's charity Operation Smile, among many others.

For the fifth anniversary, the organisers have raised the bar for the Annual Macau Business Charity Golf Tournament. With a fully packed goodie bag, and five-star hospitality and service, patrons will be pampered throughout the event.

Caesars Golf will host the first round of competition, which will have a more relaxed feel. Teams will be greeted on arrival with an indulgent experience that goes well beyond the round of golf, with fun challenges throughout the day – including entertainment at the 19th hole.

The more competitive second round takes place at the Macau Golf and Country Club, against the dramatic backdrop of the South China Sea.

The tournament format is a Threesome Texas Scramble, while scoring will be calculated according to a double Peoria system, allowing players of different levels to compete on relatively even ground.

Highlights

The total tournament prize money of HK$200,000 is to be split between the two teams that finish the tournament with the best net and gross scores respectively. Each winning team will have the right to choose the charity or social project that they would like to forward their winnings to. Only teams with the same line-up of players on both days will be eligible for the top prize.

The special awards and trophies include one each for longest drive (men and ladies), the stroke nearest to the pin, the straightest drive, the putting challenge and the best performing team, among others.

The Macau Business Charity Gala Dinner, intended to accommodate non-golfing patrons as well as the tournament players, has become a highlight of the event.

Westin Resort's Pool Loggia will provide the ambience for the evening's programme, which includes the prize-presentation ceremony for the golf competition.

A charity auction of memorabilia from the fields of sport, music and other kinds of entertainment will run throughout the evening. And so that everyone has a chance to be a winner, a raffle will close the evening's official programme.

Patrons can expect exquisite gastronomic delights, an open bar serving fine wines and spirits, complemented by a cigar-rolling demonstration by a Dominican premium master roller, courtesy of Davidoff.

Melco Crown Entertainment Ltd. is again a main sponsor of the Annual Macau Business Charity Golf Tournament and Gala Dinner, along with Australian casino The Star, Caesars Golf Macau and the Westin Resort.

Other leading sponsors include the remaining five casino operators in Macau: Sands China Ltd., Galaxy Entertainment Group Ltd., MGM China Holdings Ltd., SJM Holdings Ltd. and Wynn Macau Ltd. Aristocrat, Silver Heritage, Trancity Asia, Morton's The Steakhouse and YES! Golf are among the other event patrons.

Teams hail from every corner of the business community, from banking to construction and engineering, and from professional services to gaming.

Fine wines and spirits distributor Seapower Trading and luxury cigar brand Davidoff are the special Gala Dinner sponsors and will be indulging guests with some of their most luxurious products.

There are still a just a few openings for companies and socially responsible patrons to participate and support the event. For more information please email golf@macaubusiness.com.
